Dear Naja

How are you? I'm writing to you from the city zoo. I'm sitting in the restaurant and I'm looking at the people and animals.

Today, some schoolchildren are visiting the zoo. One boy is standing in front of the aquarium, but he isn't looking inside at the fish. He doesn't like the sharks. They've got big teeth!

A man is watching the hippopotamus in the big pool. His daughter isn't watching the hippo; she's looking at the kangaroos and she's laughing. The kangaroos are jumping.

Some children are frightened of the gorillas. The zookeeper looks after them, and they're safe here. He says, that in the jungle, hunters often kill them. But I believe that they're unhappy. It's not their home.

What are you doing now? Write and tell me,

*Love,
Gibreel*
